Subject: Comment Letter: Conservation Pricing

Jeanine Townsend, Clerk to the Board

Dear Ms. Townsend, In regards to California's conservation pricing, I think it's highly unfair for the water prices to be charged in one city 65%, other's 50%, etc. when Governor Brown asked for 25%. In my opinion, it should be 25% straight across the board for everyone. The taxpayer should have the right and choice to water what he wants as long as water consumption is reduced by 25%.

I'd like to know if this problem with water happens all over the United States, why we can't build an aquaduct or water pipeline from the Midwest or South so when it floods back there, the water will be moved to the states that need it and vice versa. We would employ thousands of people and help the economy as well.

Also, what is the hold-up on the desalination plants being built? How long is this going to take? Droughts will happen over and over again throughout the ages and we are dragging our feet. This should have happened long ago. Just what is it going to take for us to wise up???
