Comment re: USFS Waiver

Dear Mr. Lee:

The following comments are submitted on behalf of the California Off-Road Vehicle Association (CORVA), the Rubicon Trail Foundation, Cal Sierra ATV Club, Central Coast Motorcycle Club, Sierra Access Coalition, Friends of Independence Lake, Stewards of the Sierra National Forest, Stewards of the Sequoia, San Diego Adventure Riders Dualsport Club, Melba Leal - "Trails R Us," Four Wheel Drive Club of Fresno, Inland Empire 4 Wheel Drive Club, Byron Baker, California Outdoor Heritage Alliance, and Recreation Outdoor Coalition.

These organizations represent a diverse group of outdoor recreationists—which includes but is not limited to off-road vehicle enthusiasts, hikers, bikers, anglers, naturalists, and hunters—who are extremely active in promoting the positive and responsible aspects of vehicular access on public lands and protecting that right. For example, CORVA's main purpose is to work with the land managers for responsible off-highway vehicular access and recreation opportunities. Secondarily, CORVA educates its membership on the constantly changing rules and regulations and promotes clean-up and trail maintenance projects.

My clients and I have reviewed the Initial Study and proposed Mitigated Negative Declaration (the "MND") for the Categorical Waiver of Waste Discharge Requirements for Nonpoint Source Discharges related to Certain Activities on National Forest System Lands in California (the "Waiver") prepared by the State Water Resources Control Board (SWRCB). While we recognize the importance of regulatory consistency within the United States Forest System (USFS), after completing our review, we demand that the SWRCB prepare a Master EIR.

I. Comments on Timing and Process for Environmental Review

It has become apparent that the Project is not sufficiently developed to allow the comprehensive environmental review required by CEQA. We are perplexed as to why the SWRCB insists on completing the CEQA process for this Project, pursuant to an MND no less, before fundamental and critical questions have been resolved. Regrettably, the problems associated with these significant uncertainties, described below, have resulted in a vague, incomplete, and incoherent MND, which fails to satisfy basic CEQA requirements.

II. The Project Description is Inadequate.

A complete project description is necessary to ensure that all of the project's environmental impacts are considered.<sup>1</sup> Yet, neither the MND nor its referenced reports provide a complete and consistent project description sufficient to support environmental analysis. For example:

- The project description outlines the purpose of the Waiver (i.e. the "Project"), but does not describe how the Waiver will work or how it will be implemented for the various activities discussed in the document. For example, it does not provide any standard or criteria under which an activity the USFS proposes will, or will not, be subject to the Waiver.
- Under the current project description contained in the MND, it is impossible to know how a particular activity will be treated under the Waiver. For example, the Waiver requires that USFS implement the new statewide Water Quality Management Handbook (WQMH) when permitting or carrying out nonpoint source activities, yet the WQMH is so vague and broad in scope that it could treat two identical activities in entirely different ways, and treat two different activities in identical ways. Thus, it is impossible to comment intelligently on the "project" when the "project" is conceptual and is not adequately described.
- The MND fails to adequately describe the overall size, location, frequency, and magnitude of the Project, but rather describes the number and size of the various National Forests in California. A National Forest is not a "project."
- The MND incorporates Waiver BMPs that are unclear, inconsistent, and unnecessary.
- The project description does not provide information regarding foreseeable Project components, such as impacts resulting from road decommissioning.
- The MND and the Waiver both contain a statement to the effect that the Waiver only covers projects "covered by the Waiver" but that if special circumstances are present, then the Waiver does not apply. See page 18 of the IS/MND and page 13, paragraph 37, of the Waiver. How is the public supposed to know what projects are even covered by the Waiver when the SWRCB is saying a "project" is covered by the Waiver unless it isn't? Without additional information, the project description is woefully inadequate to inform the public of which projects will be subject to additional review and which will not.

Because so many fundamental questions regarding the size, scope, frequency, and type of activities covered by the Waiver remain unanswered, the project description cannot reasonably be considered stable, finite, or complete. We urge the SWRCB to resolve these unanswered questions and prepare a new Master EIR with a focused, stable, and coherent project description.

III. Environmental Setting is Not Adequately Described.

A CEQA document must describe the environmental conditions in the vicinity of the project:<sup>2</sup>

Knowledge of the regional setting is critical to the assessment of environmental impacts. Special emphasis should be placed on environmental resources that are rare or unique to that region and would be affected by the project. The EIR must demonstrate that the significant environmental impacts of the proposed project were adequately investigated and discussed and it must permit the significant effects of the project to be considered in the full environmental context.<sup>3</sup>

The MND does not meet this standard. In fact, all it provides is a three-and-one-half page summary of over 20 million acres of USFS land in California. It does not describe which road or trail systems are likely to be impacted by the Waiver, the extent of that impact, or even which types of roads and trails are likely to be subject to the Waiver. As written, the MND cannot fulfill its basic mission of fostering informed decision-making. Until the Project is more accurately described, the public is incapable of intelligently reviewing the MND and its associated documents.

IV. Reasonably Foreseeable Impacts are not Evaluated and are Significant and Unmitigated.

The MND does not adequately disclose all the reasonably foreseeable environmental impacts of the Waiver. Specifically, it fails to identify reasonably foreseeable significant impacts to "Biological Resources," "Geology and Soils," "Greenhouse Gas Emissions," "Hydrology and Water Quality," "Recreation," and "Transportation/Traffic." Because the impacts are not identified, it fails to properly mitigate those impacts.

CEQA provides that the governmental agency responsible for the project must prepare an EIR if the project may have a significant impact on the environment.<sup>4</sup> "The fair argument standard is a 'low threshold' test for requiring the preparation of an EIR. It is a question of law, not fact, whether a fair argument exists, and the courts owe no deference to the lead agency's determination. Review is de novo, with a preference for resolving doubts in favor of environmental review."<sup>5</sup>

In challenging an agency's decision to adopt a mitigated negative declaration, the party opposing the project must present "substantial evidence of a fair argument that the mitigation measures are inadequate to avoid the potentially significant effects."<sup>6</sup> "Substantial evidence includes facts, reasonable assumptions based on fact, and expert opinion supported by facts."<sup>7</sup> If such evidence exists, the reviewing court must set aside the agency's decision to adopt a negative declaration or a mitigated negative declaration as an abuse of discretion in failing to proceed in a manner as required by law.<sup>8</sup>

Importantly, substantial evidence of an actual impact need not be established; if there is substantial evidence in the record that a project may have a significant effect on the environment, the lead agency must prepare an EIR.<sup>9</sup> In other words, if a lead agency is presented with a fair argument that a project may have a significant effect on the environment, even after mitigation measures are implemented, the lead agency shall prepare an EIR “even though it may also be presented with other substantial evidence that the project will not have a significant effect.”<sup>10</sup> Thus, evidence to support a fair argument need not be “overwhelming or overpowering evidence.” Nor does it have to be uncontradicted.”<sup>11</sup>

CEQA Guidelines, section 15064, subdivision (d) states, “In evaluating the significance of the environmental effect of a project, the lead agency shall consider direct physical changes in the environment which may be caused by the project and reasonably foreseeable indirect physical changes in the environment which may be caused by the project.” [Emphasis added.]

Section 15358 of the CEQA Guidelines states, “‘Effects’ and ‘impacts’ as used in these guidelines are synonymous.

(a) Effects include:

(1) Direct or primary effects which are caused by the project and are later in time or farther removed in distance, but are still reasonably foreseeable....”

After reviewing the MND, and its attachments, there is a fair argument, in fact more than a fair argument, the Waiver may have a significant effect on the environment, even after mitigation measures are implemented, which will require an EIR. Our review found unmitigated significant impacts in the “Biological Resources,” “Geology and Soils,” “Greenhouse Gas Emissions,” “Hydrology and Water Quality,” “Recreation,” and “Transportation/Traffic” portions of the report. If adopted, the Waiver will result in significant environmental impacts to all six of these resources for many of the same reasons.

a. Unmitigated Impacts Associated with Road and Trail Decommissioning and Closure

Our principal concern with the Waiver is that it will result in significant and widespread road and trail decommissioning and closures. BMPs 2.1, 2.3, 2.4, 4.7.4, 4.7.5, and 4.7.6 all deal with reconstruction, maintenance, operation and monitoring of USFS roads and trails. The techniques utilized to implement these BMPs are extensive, expensive and time consuming. For example, each individual BMP includes several pages of implementation techniques including, but not limited to: development of erosion control plans; creation of waste disposal sites; development of construction plans; installation of erosion control measures; engineering, design and construction of drainage systems; development of Wet Weather Operations Standards; and development of annual maintenance plans.

However, BMPs 2.7, 4.7.7, and 4.7.8, which deal with the decommissioning, closure, and “restoration” (collectively referred to here as “closure”) of roads and trails, require no special steps or procedures, and their implementation techniques involve about half a page. In essence, in order to close a road or trail, the USFS must identify a problem, close the road/trail, and then plant native vegetation (in the case of decommissioning or restoration) or keep it closed until conditions improve (in the case of closure). The ease and simplicity with which the USFS may close a road or trail is sure to result in widespread closures across California that will result in significantly reduced recreational opportunities for the public, which includes off-road enthusiasts. While the opportunities will decrease, it is important to note that one will not see a commensurate decrease in actual recreation—recreation will actually increase on the roads and trails that remain open as the displaced recreationists pack onto the same roads and trails. If these people can no longer recreate on a certain road or trail, they will simply move themselves, and the environmental impacts they purportedly create, to another location which will only compound any environmental impact at that location.

The reasonably foreseeable impacts of people displaced by the closing of a road or trail include:

- Increased traffic on roads and trails that remain open, leading to:
  - Deterioration of existing recreation sites
  - Deterioration of existing recreational experiences
  - Increased rutting, erosion, and loss of topsoil
  - Increased sedimentation of streams
  - Increased disruption of animal habitat
- People driving more miles to reach recreation sites, which creates additional greenhouse gas emissions
- Reduced revenue in rural areas that depend upon OHV recreation as a form of tourism.

The fact that these people will simply shift the location of their recreation, rather than stop, is more than a matter of sheer speculation. We have attached as Exhibit A the signed affidavits of 1,126 USFS land users who have affirmed that if a road or trail they use is closed, for any reason, at any time of the year, they will simply move to another location to recreate in their off-highway vehicles. Thus, by closing roads or trails, the USFS and the SWRCB are not stopping an environmental impact; they are simply moving any environmental impacts associated with that location (i.e. sediment, water quality, waste disposal, etc.) to another location, which in addition to the original impacts, creates additional impacts (e.g. traffic impacts, air quality impacts, socio-economic impacts, etc.). The SWRCB cannot do this without mitigating for the reasonably foreseeable environmental consequences of closing a road or trail. The courts have a long history of requiring full CEQA analysis of indirect impacts that are a foreseeable consequence of the action.<sup>12</sup>

The possibility that the displacement effect will be too speculative to gauge with reasonable accuracy is not a basis for concluding that adoption of the Waiver does not require further analysis, disclosure, and mitigation. "The fact that precision may not be possible, however, does not mean that no analysis is required."<sup>13</sup> "The fact that the exact extent and location of such growth cannot now be determined does not excuse the County" from complying with CEQA.<sup>14</sup> Compliance with CEQA "necessarily involves some degree of forecasting ... an agency must use its best efforts to find out and disclose all that it reasonably can."<sup>15</sup>

The MND does not consider this cause and effect relationship, or its resulting cumulative impacts. The SWRCB must disclose and mitigate these reasonably foreseeable impacts in a Master EIR. This mitigation could be accomplished in one of at least two ways.

First, when it prepares an EIR, the SWRCB could add a mitigation measure to BMPs 2.7, 4.7.7, and 4.7.8, which states only after BMPs to improve a road or trail prove ineffective may the USFS close that road or trail. As it currently exists, the USFS does not have to implement any BMPs before it closes a road or trail. By requiring this mitigation measure, the SWRCB could reduce the unnecessary closure of roads or trails and the unnecessary displacement of that road's or trail's users.

Second, when it prepares an EIR, it could also mitigate these reasonably foreseeable impacts by requiring the USFS to comply with NEPA before it closes any road or trail. As of right now, the USFS does not have to comply with NEPA before it closes a road or trail if it plans to revegetate the area with native vegetation. This is implicitly recognized on page 7 ("any NEPA analysis"), page 17 (reasonable implementation of "NEPA requirements"), and page 18 ("all listed activities go through NEPA...except when a categorical exemption applies") of the Initial Study. The USFS NEPA Implementation Handbook, 36 CFR 220.6(e)(5), provides an exemption from NEPA when the USFS action involves:

(5) Regeneration of an area to native tree species, including site preparation that does not involve the use of herbicides or result in vegetation type conversion. [Emphasis added.]

Thus, as of right now, the USFS does not have to go through the NEPA process to close a road or trail. Requiring the USFS to comply with NEPA before it closes any roads or trails will ensure that any indirect impacts (i.e. increased traffic on roads and trails that remain open, additional driving to reach these roads and trails that remain open, etc.) will be disclosed to the public, which will have an opportunity to comment.

b. Unmitigated Impacts Associated with Additional Regulation

Our second concern with the MND is that the Waiver adds an additional and unnecessary layer of regulation to USFS activities, which will result in the reduction or delay of much needed projects. Put differently, requiring the USFS to perform additional work (i.e. applying for a waiver) prior to implementing needed road and trail maintenance will reduce the resources, both human and financial, the USFS has available to actually perform that work. Rather than clean a culvert, the USFS is going to have to spend its time filling out the paperwork that authorizes it to do so. This will inevitably limit the number of projects the USFS can undertake in a given year, and therefore increase the very same environmental impacts the Waiver seeks to avoid.

In order to address this impact, the SWRCB should increase the number of activities that are eligible for treatment as "Category A," as outlined on page 25 of the proposed Order. For example, all of the following activities are more appropriately considered low risk than moderate risk; especially when one considers the risk of delaying BMP implementation for a year or more:

1. Non-emergency fire restoration and rehabilitation of burned areas.
2. All vegetation management.
3. Road upgrading and storm-proofing.
4. Motor vehicle trail use, maintenance and operation.
5. OHV trail use, maintenance and operation.
6. Timber fuel reduction activities.

Adding these activities to Category A is supported by USFS documents, available on the SWRCB website, that have reviewed the effectiveness of its own BMPs. In a document entitled Water Quality Protection on National Forests in the Pacific Southwest Region: Best Management Practices Evaluation Program, 2003-2007 USDA,<sup>16</sup> the USFS writes on page 2:

For the 5-year reporting period, 86% of Best Management Practices (BMPs) were rated as implemented and 89% were rated as effective. Among implemented BMPs, 93% were rated effective.

Of the 2,861 on-site evaluations used for this report, 98% indicated no significant adverse impacts on water quality. Only 8% of the onsite evaluations indicated any measurable potential or actual adverse impacts on water quality.

Many of the BMPs rated as ineffective were ineffective owing to lack of implementation rather than shortcomings in the BMPs. Improved implementation of BMPs is the single most useful step that can be taken to improve water-quality protection on national forests in California.

If the BMPS, when implemented, are 93% effective in preventing impacts to water quality, there seems to be little justification for requiring an additional layer of regulation that impairs the USFS's ability to implement the BMPs on a timely basis.

Furthermore, adding these activities to Category A is important if we are going to believe the SWRCB's assertion that forest roads are the "single most significant anthropogenic source of sediment on NFS lands."<sup>17</sup> If roads are the single most important source of sediment, why is the SWRCB creating regulatory obstacles to correct the problem? All of the above listed activities should be part of Category A because of the relative risk between doing something to address sedimentation and delaying action for a year or more. Put differently, it is better to fix a problem than to talk about it and the Waiver should reflect this common sense.

c. Lack of Substantial Evidence

Ultimately, the SWRCB's decision will be reviewed pursuant to Public Resources Code sections 21168 and 21168.5, which require the SWRCB's decision to be supported by substantial evidence. "Substantial evidence" is defined as "enough relevant information and reasonable inferences from this information that a fair inference can be made to support a conclusion, even though other conclusions might be reached."<sup>18</sup> Using this standard, the MND is subject to being overturned on a number of bases. Our review revealed that the following sections are deficient because none of them identified or even considered the environmental impacts associated with reduced and displaced recreation.

- There is no substantial evidence to support the SWRCB contention that the environmental impacts to biological resources, caused by the reduced and displaced recreation created by the Project, will be sufficiently mitigated by measures identified on pages 37-40 of the Initial Study. Closing roads and trails will inevitably result in increased activities on the roads and trails that remain open, which will lead to substantial adverse effects on special status species, riparian habitat, sensitive natural communities, and will substantially interfere with the movement of resident wildlife species and impair wildlife corridors. While the MND cites various USFS policies as "mitigation measures," there is no discussion on when or how these measures will be imposed, or how the SWRCB plans on enforcing them against the USFS if the USFS fails to follow its own procedures.
- There is no substantial evidence to support the SWRCB contention that the environmental impacts to geology and soils, caused by the reduced and displaced recreation created by the Project, will be sufficiently mitigated by measures identified on pages 42-47 of the Initial Study. Closing roads and trails will inevitably result in increased activities on the roads and trails that remain open, which will lead to, paradoxically, an increase in soil erosion and loss of topsoil. As discussed above, recreationists are not going to stop recreating because a particular road or trail has been closed. They will merely move and concentrate their activities on the few roads or trails that remain open.
- There is no substantial evidence to support the SWRCB contention that the environmental impacts associated with greenhouse gas emissions, caused by the reduced and displaced recreation created by the Project, will be sufficiently mitigated by measures identified on pages 48-49 of the Initial Study. Closing roads and trails will inevitably result in increased travel to the roads and trails that remain open, which will lead to increased greenhouse gas emissions.
- There is no substantial evidence to support the SWRCB contention that the environmental impacts to hydrology and water quality, caused by the reduced and displaced recreation created by the Project, will be sufficiently mitigated by measures identified on pages 54-59 of the Initial Study. Closing roads and trails will inevitably result in increased activities on the roads and trails that remain open, which will lead to an increase in soil erosion and loss of topsoil, which will lead to, paradoxically, an increase in the forms of water quality degradation that the Waiver is seeking to avoid. As discussed above, recreationists are not going to stop recreating because a particular road or trail has been closed. They will merely move and concentrate their activities on the few roads or trails that remain open.

- There is no substantial evidence to support the SWRCB contention that the environmental impacts to recreation, caused by the reduced and displaced recreation created by the Project, will be sufficiently mitigated by measures identified on pages 63-64 of the Initial Study. This is one of the greatest environmental impacts that the SWRCB has failed to identify and address. The section of the environmental checklist dealing with "Recreation" on page 63 fails to accurately answer the question: "Would the project increase the use of existing neighborhood and regional parks or other recreational facilities such that substantial physical deterioration of the facility would occur or be accelerated?" This question must be answered in the affirmative, yet the Waiver answers "less than significant." As the 1,126 affidavits attest to, the Waiver, and its associated WQMP, will inevitably lead to road and trail closures that will cause recreationists to increase the use of existing recreation facilities that will lead to their accelerated deterioration. The MND must identify and mitigate for this impact.
- There is no substantial evidence to support the SWRCB contention that the environmental impacts to transportation and traffic, caused by the reduced and displaced recreation created by the Project, will be sufficiently mitigated by measures identified on pages 65-66 of the Initial Study. Closing roads and trails will inevitably result in increased travel to the roads and trails that remain open, which will lead to increased traffic, congestion, and use of roads leading to recreation sites.

d. Unmitigated Economic and Social Impacts

"Economic or social effects of a project may be used to determine the significance of physical changes caused by the project."<sup>19</sup> In this case, the inevitable road and trail closures that will result from the Waiver will have far reaching and significant impacts on the small and local economies that depend upon the tourism generated from recreational visits to roads and trails. The requirement to consider such secondary and indirect environmental effects is mandatory.<sup>20</sup>

According to a report from USDA Rural Development, entitled Jobs, Economic Development and Sustainable Communities, February 9, 2010, recreational tourism is often the greatest single source of revenue for rural communities. The report provides this salient point (edited for length):

RECREATION AND TOURISM ARE VITAL TO MOST RURAL COMMUNITIES: This is true for virtually all rural communities but especially important to counties with high percentages of public land. Actions by public agencies to reduce or limit access to recreation on public lands have a direct impact on the local economy. Limiting access by closing roads, campgrounds, RV parking, and trails impact the surrounding communities. Visitors to public lands utilize nearby communities for food, lodging and support facilities. Interests include hiking, photography, horseback riding, biking, climbing, backpacking, birding, hunting, sport fishing, and many more. Public land agencies' communication with community businesses is essential to job creation and stable rural communities.

As one attendee in Inyo County noted, "Tourism is our bread and butter." Many of Inyo County's existing small businesses serve visitors directly, and everyone relies on tourism generated revenues indirectly. Recent research by Dean Runyan Associates indicates that direct travel spending in Inyo County is approximately $190 Million annually; this correlates to $47 Million dollars in earnings and 2,500 jobs directly related to tourism.<sup>21</sup> TOT (hotel bed tax) generates about $3.7 Million annually in Inyo County; about half within the city limits of Bishop and half in the unincorporated areas of the county. Many rural counties have similar circumstances and needs...

- Improve access to public lands for recreation purposes.

Recreation and tourism economies are the mainstay for rural counties with high percentages of public land. Actions by public agencies to reduce or limit access to for recreation have a direct impact on local pocket books. Limiting access by closing roads, campgrounds, RV parking, and trails for all or one special interests group will impact surrounding communities. Visitors to public lands utilize nearby communities for food, lodging and support facilities. Interests include hiking, photography, horseback riding, biking, climbing, backpacking, birding, hunting, fishing, and many more. Public land communication with community business is essential to job creation and stable rural communities. This communication in the past has not existed for all rural communities.

- Streamlining permits for local special events and recreational use will increase local economies and jobs (emphasize historic attractions).

All of these activities require access to roads and trails, whether the destination is the road or trail itself, or merely the means of reaching the ultimate destination. Either way, the closure of any popular road or trail will ultimately result in reduced recreational opportunities in the immediate area and the deterioration of the local rural economy. These impacts are not even addressed, let alone mitigated, in the MND.

e. Unmitigated Cumulative Impacts

Our final concern with the MND is that in addition to evaluating a project's reasonably foreseeable direct and indirect environmental effects, CEQA requires a lead agency to assess whether a project's cumulative effect requires an EIR.<sup>22</sup> However, the MND contains no substantive evaluation of cumulative impacts to the USFS road system already impacted by the Travel Management Rule.<sup>23</sup> Under the Travel Management Rule, the USFS is already designating roads and trails for decommissioning and closure, yet the cumulative impacts resulting from those closures are not discussed in the MND.

Furthermore, the MND's conclusory statement that because the Waiver "incorporates all the mitigation set forth in this Initial Study and the Mitigated Negative Declaration" that the "cumulative effect will be rendered less than cumulatively considerable" is unconvincing as a matter of fact and law.<sup>24</sup> A project's impact can be cumulatively considerable even if its individual contribution to an existing state of environmental impairment is minimal and not individually significant. As the CBE court said, “the guiding criterion on the subject of cumulative impact is whether any additional effect caused by the proposed project should be considered significant given the existing cumulative effect.”<sup>25</sup> Thus, the greater an existing problem, the more likely a project’s incremental contribution will be found cumulatively considerable regardless of its individual magnitude. In other words, since the OHV community is already being displaced onto fewer and fewer roads as a result of the Travel Management Rule, the accelerated displacement that is certain to occur under the Waiver is a cumulative impact that will require additional analysis and mitigation measures.

V. Conclusion

In sum, we believe that we will be able to establish that the proposed measures are inadequate to avoid potentially significant effects that would be caused by the Waiver, thereby mandating preparation of a Master EIR. A Master EIR is appropriate in this case because this type of EIR is specifically for projects, such as general plans, or projects that consist of smaller individual projects that will be carried out in phases over a period of years.<sup>26</sup> An MND in this case is completely inappropriate since it cannot even begin to address the multitude of projects and impacts that will be undertaken over a period of five years and across 20 million acres in California.

Very truly yours,

Jesse W. Barton
