

Dear Chairwoman Marcus:

(cc: Vice Chair Frances Spivy-Weber, Tam Doduc, Steven Moore, Dorene D'Amamo)

Stop letting PG&E thumb its nose at the environment!

I urge you to bring PG&E's Diablo Canyon fully into line with California's landmark coastal protection policy by eliminating once-through cooling (OTC) and requiring that cooling towers be installed at the power plant.

They are killing more than a billion young fish and other species a year.

The only way to honor the intent of California's OTC policy and protect the interests of the public and the environment is to REQUIRE PG&E to build cooling towers at the Diablo Canyon power plant as soon as possible. THEY HAVE THE MONEY.

I urge the Board to take this action before the end of the year.

Stop letting PG&E to flout California law solely for investor profits. This is truly about greed: greed can kill.
