Hello,

I am writing in response to a small article seen in the May 20th edition of the West Marin Citizen called, "West Marin water bodies still 'impaired'". This concerns me because I have swam in the Lagunitas creek on numerous occasions and have never seen any signs posted regarding the water's pathogens, or impairment. I would like to see measures improved in all these waterways for wildlife and humans alike. Please let me know what's up. I would also like to know if I should be tested for anything considering how often I have been in the Lagunitas creek. Thank you,

Jessica Taylor
