

Hello. This isn't something that I do very often. I feel compelled to put my 2 ¢ in. I only hunt and peck on my cheap tablet so this will take me awhile. I live in Chico (not Chino). I am still mad at the last idiot Governor for requiring every house to have a water meter. The aquifer in Chico is deep and has plenty of water. In all other droughts we did fine. We never did need meters and still don't. We have and will have plenty of water. Now this governor wants to use the meters against us. I don't think I should be penalized for using our plentiful water. Next I must point out that I have not heard of any different tiers for people with medical necessities. My wife has MS and diabetes. I also have diabetes and liver problems. I know this is gross but she also has explosive diarrhea. She needs to use a lot of water to clean her self and her clothing. She also needs to stay cool and uses water to do this. We also let some less fortunate people come to our house to do their laundry. I also have not heard of households size accommodations. I have tried to for years to save water including using irrigation drip systems. So now I am going to be penalized for using less water. I live in Chico partially because it does have water. We have plenty! Please leave us alone. Thank you, Barry Zeidman, Chico, CA
