

Please take a look at D F G. 2010 study how 60 percent of springtime flow is needed for San Joaquin river to restore salmon runs. Other users can look at/adjust the way they are using water as has been done in other places or times of drought. This can have a very positive financial and ecological effect that is far reaching. 30 to 40 percent unimpeded flow is not enough. Thank you.....Mark Ortega