Subject: lake almanor the next San Bruno

All I can say is PLEASE LEAVE IT ALONE! The lake and all it has to offer is truly a gem for this area. The water activities and scenic backdrops are breathtaking. I've spent countless years out on the water during the Hex hatch, watching the bugs rise from the water as the fish chase them all awhile having Lassen in the distance as the setting sun putting the angler in a truly "nowhere else" environment. The fishing is the main reason for my travels to Almanor and I DON'T want that to change, I want my grandchildren to experience what I'm experiencing and the last thing we need is MAN interfering with something that's as fragile as this aquatic environment is. You're going to screw up all that's good about this lake and for what? Don't make Lake Almanor the next San Bruno disaster, PG&E still can't wipe the blood off their hands from that disaster, don't add to it.
